The specific set of answers that boomers — in some cases it was Democratic boomers and others, Republicans, came up with ended up not being helpful for millennials. Right. It seems that these policies, like much of public policy work, came from a good place but in this instance didn't pan out equally for people across the economy.

The America of the near future will look nothing like the America of the recent past. America is in the throes of a demographic overhaul. Huge generation gaps have opened up in our political and social values, our economic well-being, our family structure, our racial and ethnic identity, our gender norms, our religious affiliation, and our technology
